

Arlene Kearns, Moody's Analytics

To me, Juneteenth is an important day for everyone in the US to remember and celebrate. I feel it's the day we started to become one nation when we took the first step on our journey of inclusion and equality. Recognizing Juneteenth each year makes me reflect on how far we've come and how far we still have to go - and my role in getting us to a better place.